

Murder at the Manor

At 7pm the evening starts with the centuries honoured Stone House tradition of a glass of bubbly served with our Chef's selection of canapés in the opulence of our newly refurbished Georgian Library (soft drink or beer if - preferred, with further pre-dinner drinks available from the bar.)

The scene is set and the drama begins to unfold before us. We then move back a couple of centuries and into the original oak panelled Tudor Dining Room. Here the plot develops and thickens (and you find your pre-ordered table drinks.)

Armed with the basic facts and a map of the house, we now split into our "detective" groups and interrogate the various suspects in the Dining Room, Drawing Room, Master Four Poster Bedroom and the little Tudor Snug. But are any of them the actual murder scene ?

Returning to the Dining Room, we enjoy the first two courses of our three-course supper, undisturbed, but wondering....

The mystery then comes to its conclusion with the inevitable twist and any budding Poirots suitably rewarded.

Following photos, the thesp's retire, leaving us to enjoy our dessert, coffee and another glass or two ....

Ticket price £85 per guest to include Theatre, Food & Welcome Drink. Strictly limited numbers. Seating at shared banqueting tables.
